 - c) Say your full name and country at the beginning of the video.
 - d) Do not include any contact information including phone numbers, emails, Skype account, etc.
 - e) Dress appropriately and be careful not to use too much make up.
 - f) You may use quiet music and switch filming location so the background is more interesting.
 - g) Rehearse before real time production; adjust your lighting, camera position, microphone sound, etc to have better video quality.

Please note that once your application is submitted it becomes property of LoPair Education. Please keep your own original or copies of certificates, references, pictures, videos, etc.

Once you have passed the interview procedure, completed all application, your file will then be circulated to the suitable host families and any who are interested in your application might email or telephone you directly. It's essential that you present LoPair or its International Partner/Overseas Representative with a feedback after every contact with a potential Host Family. Once a Host Family has chosen you, you must make a decision ASAP. A Host Family-Au Pair Agreement, which outlines house rules and your weekly schedule, must be signed by both parties in order to finalize the matching process. LoPair will issue Visa Invitation documents and its International Partner / Overseas Representatives will assist you in preparing your visa application. You will be required to pay Program Fee & Airfare Add-on before getting your international flight tickets.

We look forward to receiving your completed application!

APA03: Guidelines for Au Pairs

The following points may assist you in settling into a new household in China. This serves as a general outline:

1. As the first oriental destination in au pairing history, China will offer a uniquely different cultural and life experience. Be very open towards the different cultures and lifestyles.
2. It can be difficult for an Au Pair to get used to living with a new Chinese family. Bear in mind that it is equally difficult for your Chinese Host Family to get used to someone new in their home. Try to emerge in the same way that the family welcomes you!

House Rules, Responsibilities and Schedules

3. Stick to the house rules and remember that there will be some duties that the Host Family expects you to do. Communicate with them on a regular basis, especially in the first 2 weeks, trying to understand each other's needs and expectations so that you can later live up to or exceed these expectations.
4. Do not be afraid to ask any questions you might have about your schedule and duties. If you do have problems in communicating with your Host Family over certain important issues, turn to your assigned Local Coordinator, they will try to help you with it!
5. Remember it is also part of your responsibility to negotiate with the Host Family on your weekly/daily schedule. Be direct if you have any problems with maintaining or changing your weekly schedule. Your Host Family will be happy to work together with you on a schedule that can work well for both parties.
6. Be open and flexible with your duty hours. If you work longer on one day/week, you are likely to be compensated for a less-burdened day/week on another, your host family will appreciate this kind of flexibility.
7. Do not come back home late or stay out all night without notice, your Host Family will worry about you. If you wish to delay your curfew time, bring this topic to the Host Family with appropriate reason in a proper manner.
8. Ask if you can invite your friends to your new home. Never entertain your friends in the house unless you have discussed this with your Host Family in advance and are allowed to do so.

Attitudes and Personal Habits

9. Try your best to be cheerful, helpful, reliable, trustworthy, and polite. You may feel lonely and homesick at the beginning of your stay, but remember your Host Family and LoPair staff will be aware of this. If you feel unwell or miss your own family, simply let them know. They will try their best to get you more used to the living habits, local community, and help you set up new connections.
10. Personal hygiene is important to the families. Inquire when you may use washing machine or if your clothes can be washed together with the families'. Keep your bedroom clean and tidy all the time. It is also part of your responsibility to look after public areas and house belongings in a way that you would treat your own home.
11. At family mealtimes and other family activities, try to be on time. Try to help with the washing up and cleaning, unless you are told not to do so. If you are making a tea for yourself, ask somebody else in the house if they would like to have one too. Remember Chinese people look highly upon hospitality treats such as offering tea to the houseguests! Remember to wash up and tidy away after you have eaten when at home alone. Don't leave your dirty dishes on the table or in the sink unless you have been told to do so.

12. Respect the eating habits of your Host Family. Do not take food that is forbidden by your Host Family's customs or religions into the house. However, kindly let them know your personal favorite dishes/snacks so that they might accommodate your wish on certain basis. You are always welcome to cook a meal from your hometown or home country every now and then!
13. Different cultures, different family types often have different views on the definition of privacy. Do not feel uncomfortable discussing this topic with your Host Family when you feel that you and your Host Family share different views on this matter. If you respect the privacy of the family, they will respect yours.

Childcare and Child Education

14. Child safety and health are always of high priority. Don't give any snacks or medicines to children without explicit instructions from your Host Family to do so. Always make sure that you have left the Host Family with a contact number while taking care of children by yourself. Never ever leave your host children unattended!
15. Children are universally naughty. If your host child offended you in whatever way, never physically abuse them. Inform the parents and discuss together with them on a solution.
16. Be proactive and creative towards the Host Children. Your Host Family will expect you to bring forth fun ways to educate and interact with the children. Think of some ideas before your departure on how to get the children involved in tutoring/cultural/sports activities that you will arrange for them.
17. Be a good role model. Remember host children regard you as a big sister/brother that they can always look up to and learn from, and the host parents expect the very same way.

Pocket Money and Personal Expenses

18. Remember your monthly Pocket Money is only a minor part of what the family has paid for you. If your performance meets or exceeds the Host Family's expectation, you may be also rewarded with more (not just in monetary ways).
19. You should expect to buy your own personal goods or daily necessities, such as toothpaste and soap, unless the Host Family insists on buying them for you.
20. Ask your Host Family if you may use the telephone, computer, fax, or other facilities in the house that can cost your Host Family extra money before using them directly.

Others

21. It will be nice to bring a small gift for your Host Family (if possible to every family member) upon your arrival or on special occasions during your stay in China. This kind of Chinese hospitality has been going strong for almost 3,000 years!
22. Should you have any problem during your stay, you are always welcome to discuss them with your assigned Local Coordinator and Placement Manager after your direct communication attempts have failed. LoPair staff will be happy to resolve conflicts or personal issues for you in order to make your stay easier.
